DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

I find these protestors words to be absolutely disgusting. I don't know why they can't just accept the fact that he's president, and will be for four years if nothing happens to him health wise. Mostly liberals are complaining about Trump's presidency, but they fail to see the bigger picture, and that is that Donald loves America, and wants to do good for it. Instead, they think it's better to try to make the presidents every move impossible, instead of rallying behind him to help America. Sometimes I believe these people don't love the country the way they should. All these issues have come up because people are unhappy with who was nominated for president. Nobody protested when Obama made an immigration ban for six months back in 2011.

If we continue on the path that we have been on for the past few weeks since Trump was elected, there will be a very large divide in the country. Liberal protestors have beat up and seriously hurt people who say they support trump and then they say that he's a violent man, that is pure double standards. Those people are the problem with our great nation. Another topic in concern of mine is how sanctuary cities will play out. I think they are not good, because they shield illegals from the law, and therefore sometimes they commit horrible crimes and don't even get punished as they should for it. Most sanctuary cities are run by liberals and poor policies.
